IMPORTANT TO KNOW

- The Foreign Exchange market is volatile; holding and investing in foreign currencies can be risky. Foreign currency markets can fluctuate based on market driven events such as data releases or important meetings of financial markets participants. One can potentially earn higher interest by investing in certain foreign currencies, losses can be incurred if the foreign currency depreciates against your home currency. Exchange controls may be applicable from time to time to certain foreign currencies. You should therefore determine whether any foreign currency holding, or foreign currency investment is suitable for you in the light of your financial circumstances, needs and objectives.
- As part of our services to you, subject to the laws in your home country, we may from time to time provide to you the information, on various foreign exchange products. Please note the following in such situations:
 - The information does not constitute investment advice and you are not obligated to accept them.
 - You should only make foreign exchange decisions that you understand, and that are consistent with your financial circumstances, needs and objectives.
 - If you require legal or tax counsel, we recommend that you consult your own independent legal and tax advisors as necessary.
 - All foreign exchange decisions relating to your account are yours solely.

- Prior to making a foreign exchange decision, you should conduct your own study of the foreign exchange product in question to ensure that it matches your financial circumstances, needs and objectives.
- Citi Economic Forecasts on Foreign Exchange Rates are published on a periodic basis and are available on request. The forecasts are for specific time horizons and cover only specific currencies and are not a guarantee of performance.
- We do not undertake responsibility to monitor profits and losses on your portfolio for you. In particular:
 - You are responsible for monitoring your own portfolio.
 - You can refer to your monthly statements to see the value of your holdings (including the currencies and the amounts), and where applicable, the summary value of your holdings is also shown in base currency equivalent. Historical records of your monthly statements can be retrieved at your convenience on Citi Online.

- You understand that the Foreign Exchange Order Watch Service allows you to place a Limit Order to buy and/or sell specific foreign currencies. Each Limit Order placed by you is valid for a specific period as confirmed to you. The Limit Order will be executed only if the market price (as determined by you) reaches the customer price (which is inclusive of bank commission). Under certain adverse market conditions, it may be difficult or impossible to execute the Limit Order. Orders are live during market hours, and are not executable when the underlying interbank market is closed. You are fully responsible for all orders that are placed, and any cost resulting from any unwinding of any order will be borne by you.
- “Limit Order” means an order that you place to buy or sell a financial instrument at its specified price limit or better and for a specified size. The Limit Order will be triggered for execution when the price of that financial instrument reaches the specified level and the specified size of the order is available. Subject to the paragraph above, once the Limit Order has been triggered at the specified level and size, the order will be executed at the same (or better) as the price specified in the Limit Order.
- You understand that the Citi UAE Reference Exchange Rate quoted to you includes the bank commission.
